

Book Fair at U of SC Aiken

The Center for Lifelong Learning at the University of South Carolina cordially invites the public to its first annual Book Fair on Saturday, November 13. The Fair will open to the public, with registration beginning at 9:30 a.m., and will conclude at 3:00 p.m.

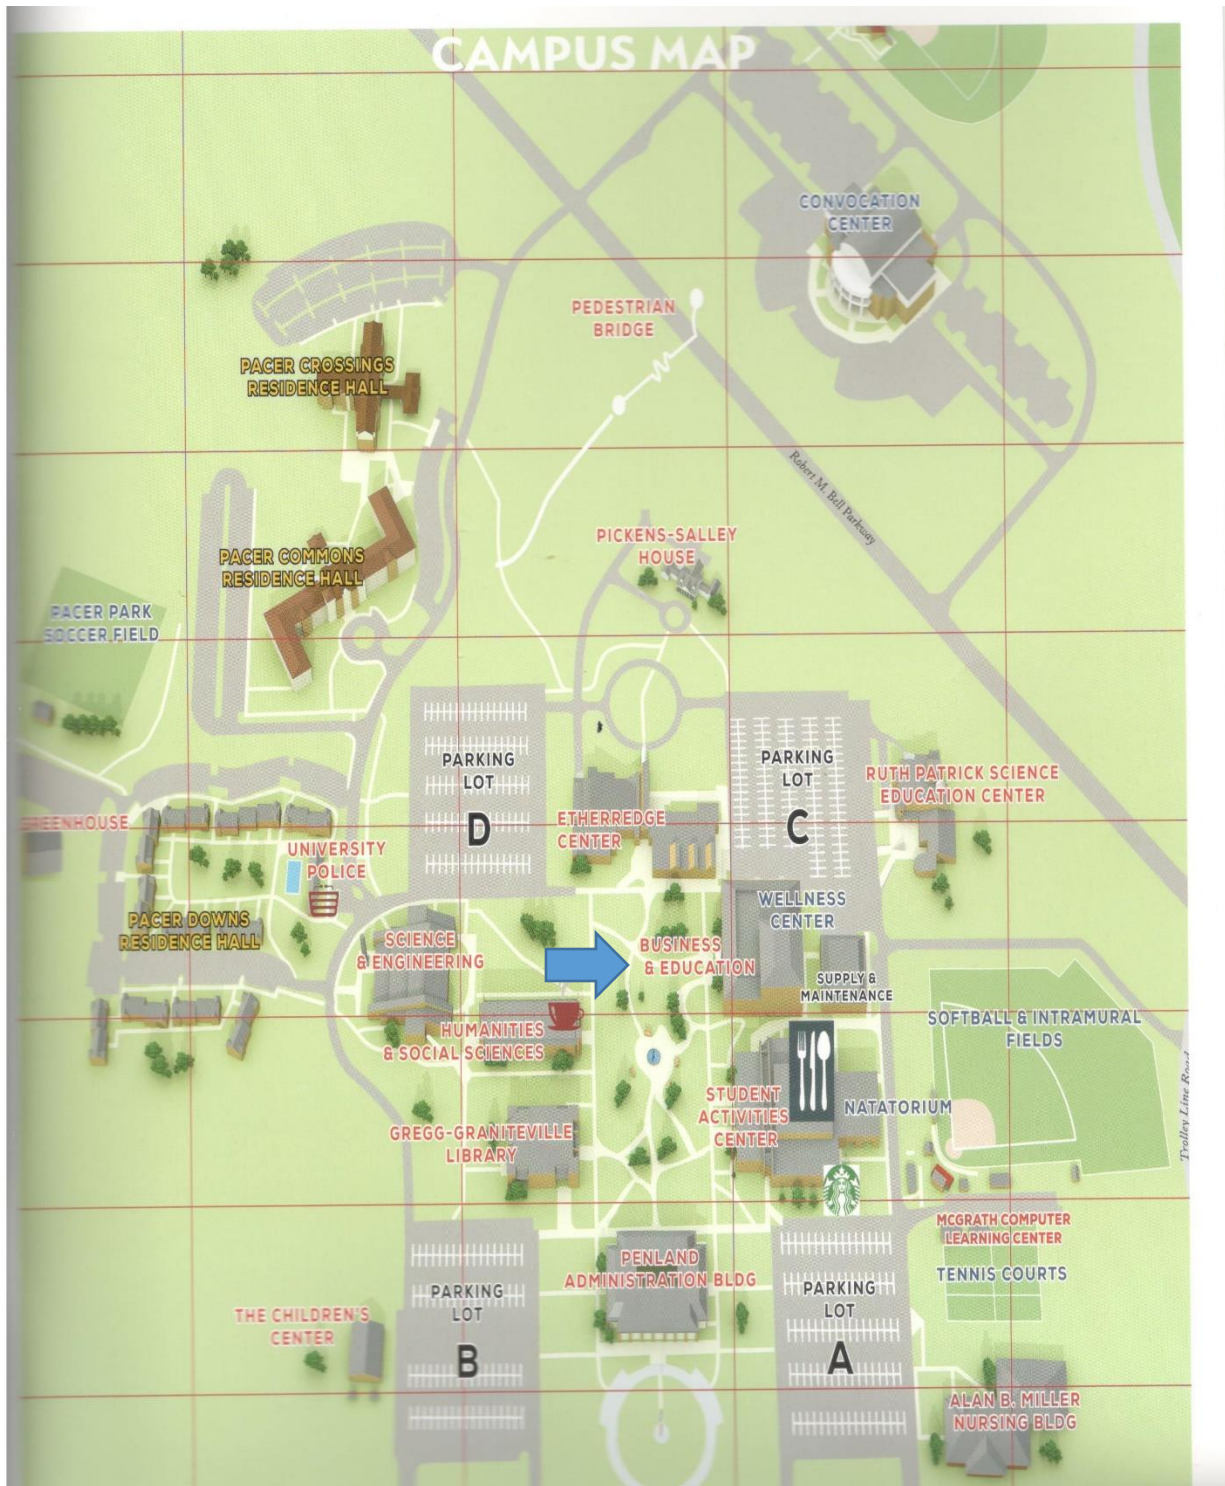

The Fair will feature more than forty regional authors offering their books for sale and will also have a full program of talks on writing and publishing topics. It is scheduled for national Indie Author Day and will celebrate the contributions of independent authors.

The keynote speaker is Dr. Kasie Whitener. She hosts the "Write On SC" radio program on Saturday mornings, serves as board member to the South Carolina Writers Association, and was a 2021 recipient of the Fresh Voices in the Humanities award. Dr. Whitener is a business owner and instructor at the University of South Carolina. Her first two novels, After December and Before Pittsburgh, have won critical acclaim.

The Fair will be held in the Business & Education building, which is adjacent to the Etherredge Center and the Ruth Patrick Science Education Center. Free parking will be available and refreshments will be served. We are asking a $ 5 voluntary donation to help support our scholarship funds.

Please come join us for a day of enjoyable browsing and informative talks. This is the perfect time to purchase books for those readers on your gift list.

The Business & Education building is located off Robert M. Bell Parkway, which is easily accessible from U.S. 1/78. From I-20, take Exit 22 and follow U.S. 1 to SC 118. Continue on SC 118, past SC 19, to the Planetarium, then enter the campus. Park in Parking Lot C, in the spaces marked off by white lines.
